

Bursting onto the scene like a wild house party, DOG WITH A SPOON is here to remind you why pop punk will never die. This three-piece from the Netherlands serves up an irresistible mix of high-octane energy, infectious hooks, and clever lyrics that range from hilariously offbeat to unexpectedly heartfelt.

Inspired by the likes of Green Day, Blink 182, Sum 41 and The Aquabats, these guys grew up in the golden era of pop punk and are now crafting the next chapter. With tracks like “The Greatest Stamp Collector,” destined to become the anthem you didn’t know you needed, and “Friend For Life,” capable of warming the coldest of hearts, DOG WITH A SPOON knows how to get under your skin in the best way possible.

Their uptempo banger “I Quit” will have you headbanging long after the song’s over—just be prepared for your friends to plead with you to stop singing the chorus on repeat. Whether you’re a die-hard pop punk fan or a newcomer, DOG WITH A SPOON’s sharp wit and relentless energy make them impossible to ignore. One thing’s for sure: you’re going to want in on this ride.
